

Readiness Assessment

Proactively assess your environment

You've made an incident response plan, but is your organization truly ready to respond in an emergency? It's important to regularly review your incident response policies, documentation and resources, but it's hard to know where to start or how to prioritize addressing gaps.

With a Talos Incident Response Readiness Assessment, we'll go over your plan with a fine-tooth comb, ensuring there are defined roles and responsibilities for every aspect of a potential incident. If anything's missing or outdated, we'll put together a roadmap for quick wins and long-term strategic goals. If you have other policies, such as user awareness training, acceptable use, disaster recovery or business continuity, we'll add these as part of our assessment.

The Talos Incident Response team has decades of combined experience across every vertical and organization size, and we understand the importance of a response plan that evolves with you.

With this service, you will receive:

- In-depth analysis of your current IR plan against an evolution and maturity model, including comprehensive stakeholder interviews
- Workshops to help you understand every aspect of your documentation
- Detailed summary of key findings and recommended next steps to resolve any IR process gaps across your business and defense processes. These will be broken down into tactical recommendations and strategic long-term recommendations
- Formal presentation of key findings and next steps to project stakeholders

Benefits

- Gain deeper insight into your current practices and enhance visibility into the strengths and weakness of your IR approach
- Efficiently measure the maturity level of your IR processes so you can fully understand your organization's readiness to detect, response and recover from an incident
- Take advantage of Talos' vast visibility of the threat landscape to test your plan against current and emerging threat trends
- Utilize expert recommendations on how to remediate any gaps or issues within your IR strategy

Areas of analysis include:

Optimize your security strategy

The Talos IR team evaluates several data points, including previous incidents, current roles and responsibilities, organization design, patching operations, logging capabilities, and more to obtain a deep understanding of your environment.

This proactive assessment helps you become more resilient to threats by providing you with remediation recommendations, empowering you to enhance your security posture before potential threats wreak havoc.
